Explanatory Note

An Act

Further Amending Republic Act No. 8042, Otherwise Known as the Migrant Workers and Overseas Filipino Act of 1995, As Amended by Republic Act No. 10022, Further Strengthening the Standard of Protection of the Welfare of Migrant Workers by Expanding the Coverage of Compulsory Insurance, and for Other Purposes

It is the policy of the state, as enshrined in the Constitution, to protect the rights of workers and promote their welfare, and to afford full protection to labor, local and overseas (Sec. 18, Art. II, Sec. 3, Art. XIII, 1987 Constitution). Accordingly, in the year 2010, compulsory insurance coverage was provided for agency-hired Overseas Filipino Workers (OFWs) under R.A. 10022, amending R.A. No. 8042. In the minimum, the mandated insurance coverage includes, death (natural or accidental), permanent disability, repatriation cost, subsistence allowance, medical evacuation, and medical repatriation.

While RA 10022 speaks of migrant workers, the compulsory insurance coverage was required only from recruitment/manning agencies with respect to their deployed migrant workers. As to other migrant workers classified as rehires, name hires or direct hires, they were only given option to have the insurance coverage which they may pay themselves or by requesting their foreign employer to pay the same. Likewise, for migrant workers recruited by POEA on a government-to-government arrangement, this insurance coverage is not even required or given the option to procure the same as the said RA10022 merely declares that for them “POEA shall establish a foreign employer’s guarantee fund which shall be answerable to the worker’s monetary claim arising from breach of contractual obligations.”
Therefore, under the present situation, when an agency-hired migrant worker dies in his workplace, his beneficiary/ies receive death benefits (i.e. US$15,000.00 if accidental death or US$10,000.00 if natural death) within ten (10) days from the filing of the claim without contest or without any need to prove fault or negligence, whatsoever, while the beneficiary of rehire, name hire or direct hire migrant worker is not entitled to such benefit unless the worker or foreign employer has opted to buy such kind of insurance cover beforehand. The scenario is worse in the case of government hired migrant worker or OFW because, in their case there being no insurance coverage hence, there is no death benefit as the “fund” would answer only for migrant worker’s monetary claim arising from breach of contractual obligations.

Thus, overseas workers classified as above-mentioned continue to be deployed without any clear indication whether they are insured or not and are therefore exposed to the hazards of their jobs without any guarantee that they or their families may have something to bank on in cases misfortunes occur.

The classical example of the current sorry situation of our non-agency hired overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) is best illustrated by COVID-19/pandemic cases creating a crises that affected countless OFWs, who are mostly bread winners particularly in the middle east, resulting in many deaths leaving families of the deceased OFWs aside from having to contend the grief of painful loss, the same is even aggravated by the certainty of financial strain that goes with it arising from the sudden loss of the income from these OFW providers. If only they are covered under this insurance program, its existing benefits, particularly the natural death benefit, shall without doubt mitigate, to a large extent, such financial burden to their families left behind.

On the part of the government, in emergency crises like this brought about by COVID-19/pandemic cases, had there been coverage for these class of OFWs under the said mandated insurance program, the government could have been saved from financial and logistical problems incident to the return of deceased OFWs’ mortal remains as the program adequately provides such benefit. What the government needs to cope with this kind of emergency crises affecting OFWs is the help and participation of the private sector and one of which is through the implementation of this kind of insurance program covering all OFWs without distinction, whether agency or non-agency hired.

Furthermore, insurance coverage for our “modern-day heroes” is an enhancement of the standard of protection of the OFWs as contemplated in R.A. No. 8042 as amended by R.A. No. 10022, and the Law has set a benchmark for insurance benefits that applies to all OFWs.
More importantly, it must be pointed out that workers under this classification are most susceptible to abuse, maltreatment, murder, human trafficking or landing on jobs that were not the jobs promised them before they left considering that their employment does not pass the meticulous scrutiny of our government agencies anymore.

Clearly, the situation presents inequality in the government's efforts at protecting the welfare of Filipino migrant workers. This bill seeks to remedy such glaring inequality by making the insurance coverage mandatory to all Filipino migrant workers regardless of how they are able to legally get their overseas employment.

In view of the foregoing, the approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
